

Proctor Library – Flagler College Chicago Manual of Style

Author-Date References Citation Sheet

Although Chicago is widely used in several academic fields, the primary focus is on the publishing author; therefore, there is no chapter on correctly formatting a paper. Chapter 1 of The Chicago Manual of Style, 17th Edition in the Ready Reference Collection, Z253 .U69 2017 does provide some guidelines.

If your professor desires you to use footnotes or endnotes please consult the Proctor Library's guide, Proctor Library – Flagler College Chicago Manual of Style Notes and Bibliography Citation Sheet. Chicago is different from MLA and APA in allowing you to choose citing via footnotes/endnotes or parenthetical citations. The Author-Date style can be found in Chapter 15.

The most important components of a citation are the author(s), book or journal title, article title, date, publication location and publisher, volume and issue number, page number, url/electronic source, format, and sometimes an accessed date. Section and page numbers corresponding to each citation are included for the reader's reference.

For more details and further help consult either the Chicago Manual or ask a librarian.
